November 26, 2014

This letter provides an update on our Division's activities.

This will be my first letter since becoming chair of the Division at our Annual Meeting in October (see a complete report on the Annual Meeting below).

There is a lot going on, including some projects with some deadlines coming up in early December.

Suggestions for proposed Workshops for 2015 Rio Congress, and proposed topics for 2016 Study Questions (Milan) - December 5 deadline for submitting each to AIPPI

The AIPPI Reporter General is now seeking proposals for the workshop program for the Congress in Rio de Janeiro in 2015 and for the Working Questions for the Congress in Milan in 2016. ANY AIPPI member can propose topics which you think would be relevant to address. These can include current hot topics or emerging areas of interest in any area of intellectual property law (patents, trademarks, designs, copyright, or geographical indications), as well as enforcement and general IP related topics.

If you have any ideas or thoughts concerning workshops for Rio, or topics for the Working questions for Milan, please send them to me (pswain@foleyhoag.com), or to the Secretary of our AIPPI-US Division, Josh Goldberg (jgoldberg@nathlaw.com), along with a short explanation for each proposed topic (why it is relevant / important, and whether it is should be the subject of a workshop or better studied as a Working Question), by Friday, December 5, so that we can forward them to the AIPPI Reporter General by that date.

Population of AIPPI Standing Committees (new approach - suggestions for nominations due December 8)

During the Toronto Congress, the Reporter General announced that the Bureau was considering a new approach to the population of the AIPPI international "Standing Committees" (formerly called Special Committees, the committees that are selected by the Bureau and consist of members from several different countries/national groups). For many years, it was typically the case that only one person from each country was allowed to be on each of these committees at any one time.

In November, the Reporter General formally announced a new approach to the selection of members to these committees, which would actually allow up to three members from any one country (national group) to be appointed to a committee. Under this new approach, each national group could nominate two members to each committee (preferably, one "senior member," and one "junior member"), and a third member if that person was an in-house counsel or a person from industry. The nominations would be for three-year appointments to each committee.

The list of AIPPI Standing Committees is below. You can see the list of current members of these committees and a description of the committees' work and their status at the AIPPI international web site www.aippi.org. The Reporter General is particularly looking for candidates for two new Standing Committees, one on Pharma, and one on Commercialization of IP, which have yet to be populated.

We are currently seeking suggestions of any persons who the AIPPI-US Division should nominate to any of these AIPPI Standing Committees. The AIPPI Reporter General has asked that these nominations be submitted by Monday, December 8. You may nominate yourself or suggest other candidates. Please let me know if you have any suggestions for nominations (pswain@foleyhoag.com).
